Washington Memorial Park Marker Policy

Nearly all sections require flush (flat) markers only. Upright monuments are permitted in very few areas: only Section 6, designated blocks of Section 23, and Cascade Court.

For the vast majority of families, the choice comes down to two materials: granite or bronze. Both last. Granite is what most families choose, because there is far more you can do with it.

Benches available in Sections 6, 23, designated blocks of 20, and the Rose Urn Garden of Section 18.

SECTION 1

About Flush Markers

The most common memorial style at Washington Memorial Park

A flush marker, also called a flat or lawn-level marker, rests level with the grass rather than standing upright. The lawn stays open, and the marker is permanent, so your family always has somewhere to visit.

Flush markers are the standard memorial style at Washington Memorial Park. They are available in granite or bronze, and can serve as a single marker or a companion marker shared between two people.

WHY FAMILIES CHOOSE FLUSH MARKERS

- Low profile, so it blends with the landscape
- Low maintenance, and easy for grounds crews
- Durable, and resists weathering for generations
- Cost-effective compared to upright monuments
- All-inclusive pricing (stone + engraving + install)

SECTION 2

Why Granite Is the Most Popular Choice

Unmatched personalization that tells your loved one's story

The number-one reason families choose granite over bronze is personalization. Granite opens up options that simply aren't possible with cast bronze, from full-color photo portraits to hand-carved artwork.

20+ Stone Colors

Choose from over 20 granite colors across three pricing tiers, from Cloud White to Absolute Black.

Photo Portraits

Ceramic steel portraits in full color or B&W, kiln-fired and warrantied for life.

Diamond Etching

A skilled artisan etches a portrait directly into the stone, dot by dot. Permanent and deeply lifelike.

Custom Engraving

Names, dates, epitaphs, religious symbols, emblems, and hand-carved scenes.

Natural Durability

Resists weathering, staining, and UV fading. Keeps its finish for generations.

All-Inclusive Pricing

Every marker includes stone, engraving, wording, and installation. Photos are the only add-on.

SECTION 3

Marker Sizes & Pricing

Complete installed pricing for every size and stone color group

The marker is one of several charges in a cemetery arrangement. The Cemetery Property Guide explains how it fits with the space, vault, and the rest.
