

Rock of Ages Columbarium

A granite courtyard columbarium at Washington Memorial Park — what it is, what a niche there includes, what it costs, and what is available now.

SECTION 1

The Columbarium

Granite, open to the sky, under a timber pavilion

Rock of Ages, from the lawn. The pavilion covers the whole courtyard, so the walls are sheltered but the place is open on every side.

Rock of Ages is a granite columbarium built around an open courtyard. Seven double-sided sections stand under a timber pavilion — walls A, B and C along the south bank, E, F and G along the north, and Wall D standing across the west head of the courtyard. Every section carries five tiers of five niches on each of its two faces.

A niche here is a compartment for cremated remains, closed with a granite front. The urn goes inside; the front is what your family sees and touches when they visit, and the name and dates are engraved into the stone itself.

Every niche carries 2 rights of interment — two people, usually a husband and wife, on one contract. There is no separate companion product to buy here; two is simply what a Rock of Ages niche holds.

ROCK OF AGES IN SHORT

- Seven double-sided granite sections, 350 niches in all, under one open pavilion.
- Two rights of interment in every niche.
- Granite front — the urn is not visible; the name is engraved in the stone.
- Outdoors, with lawn on every side and two granite memorial benches in the courtyard.

SECTION 2

Inside and Out

Courtyard faces and outward faces are two different places to be

A courtyard face, with one of the two granite memorial benches.

Wall D stands across the head of the courtyard, on its own.

Half of the faces look into the courtyard and half look out over the lawn. The courtyard faces are the sheltered, enclosed side — you stand between two walls with the benches beside you. The outward faces look across open grass and trees. It is the same building and the same stone; it is a genuinely different place to stand, and families almost always know which one is theirs once they have stood in both.

Tiers run A at the bottom to E at the top, with five spaces across each face numbered 1 to 5. Price follows the tier and the face: the higher tiers and the courtyard faces are the most sought after, the lower tiers on the outward faces the least.

Two granite memorial benches sit in the courtyard. Both have been sold. They are not inventory and cannot be quoted; they are part of the place rather than something to buy.

Choosing a Niche

The two decisions that set the price

A courtyard-facing niche

GRANITE FRONT · TWO RIGHTS · THE SHELTERED SIDE

These face into the courtyard, between the two banks, with the memorial benches in front of them. They are the most sought-after faces here and are priced above the outward ones.

COURTYARD FACES, GENERALLY

$8,795–$15,995

An outward-facing niche

GRANITE FRONT · TWO RIGHTS · LOOKING OVER THE LAWN

The outward faces look out across mown lawn and trees rather than into the courtyard. The least expensive niches at Rock of Ages are the bottom tier of an outward face.

OUTWARD FACES, GENERALLY

$7,995–$13,195

Across the whole columbarium, niches currently for sale run $7,995–$15,995, depending on the face and the tier. Your family service director will confirm the exact price of any niche before anything is written down.

SECTION 4

What Comes With It

What the niche price covers, and what is charged alongside it

Names are engraved into the granite front itself and filled, rather than carried on a separate plate.

The price of the niche buys the space and its two rights of interment. The engraving, the opening and closing when someone is placed, the recording of the interment, the bronze vase and the Endowment Care Fund contribution are charged alongside it.

ADDITIONAL CHARGES

Opening and closing, recording, endowment care and any inscription are charged in addition to the price of the space. They are straightforward, and they differ by location and by what you choose — call or email me and I will put the exact figures in writing for you, with no obligation.

About these charges. These are Bonney Watson's current charges for Rock of Ages. Your family service director will confirm the current charges before quoting, and will put them in writing for you with no obligation.

What Is Available Now

Real inventory, not a waiting list

303 of the 350 niches at Rock of Ages are for sale today — 157 on the courtyard faces and 146 on the outward faces. This is one of the places at Washington Memorial Park where a family can still choose the wall, the face and the height rather than take what is left.

SECTION 6

Coming to See It

What to decide, and what we will confirm for you

- Decide whether you want the courtyard side or the outward side. Stand in both if you can — it is the decision families feel most strongly about.
- Decide the height. A niche at eye level and a niche on the bottom tier are the same size and a very different price.
- Decide whether you are placing one person or two. Two rights come with every niche, so a couple is one contract.
- Ask us to confirm the exact niche, its price and today’s availability before anything is signed.

Ranges in this guide are computed from the price and availability data behind our live niche maps and are re-checked against them automatically whenever this page changes. They describe what is currently offered for sale, and a range moves as spaces sell. The exact price of a specific niche, and today’s availability, are always the ones your family service director confirms for you.
