

Eternal Light Columbarium

A four-sided glass-front columbarium standing indoors at Washington Memorial Park: what a niche there is, what it costs, and what is still available.

SECTION 1

The Columbarium

Glass on four sides, indoors, under a wooden crown

The Eternal Light Columbarium stands free in the corridor, so you can walk right around it.

Eternal Light is a freestanding glass-front columbarium, indoors. It is a four-sided case with a dark wooden cornice and plinth, standing on carpet in a lit corridor of the Eternal Light Mausoleum, which is attached to the Chapel of Memories, and you can walk all the way round it. Every niche is closed with glass, so the urn and the things a family places beside it stay visible.

Every niche carries 2 rights of interment. That includes the larger multi-row units. The bigger openings give a family more room to arrange, not more people.

It is the most varied of our glass-front locations. The niches are not a uniform grid: they run from single small openings up to tall units two rows high, and the prices run accordingly.

Four Faces, Clear Corners

Two broad elevations, two ends, and no niche wrapping a corner

A broad face, straight on. The empty niches are the ones still for sale.

The columbarium has four faces: two broad elevations (south, and the front, which faces north) and two narrower ends (east, at the front door, and west). The corners are solid, so no niche is visible from two sides at once; a niche belongs to exactly one face.

THE FOUR FACES

FACE	NICHES	WHAT IT IS
South	31	A broad elevation, and the largest face.
Front (north)	30	The other broad elevation.
West	12	A narrow end.
East (front door)	12	The narrow end nearest the entrance.

SECTION 3

Choosing a Niche

What is actually on offer

An Eternal Light niche

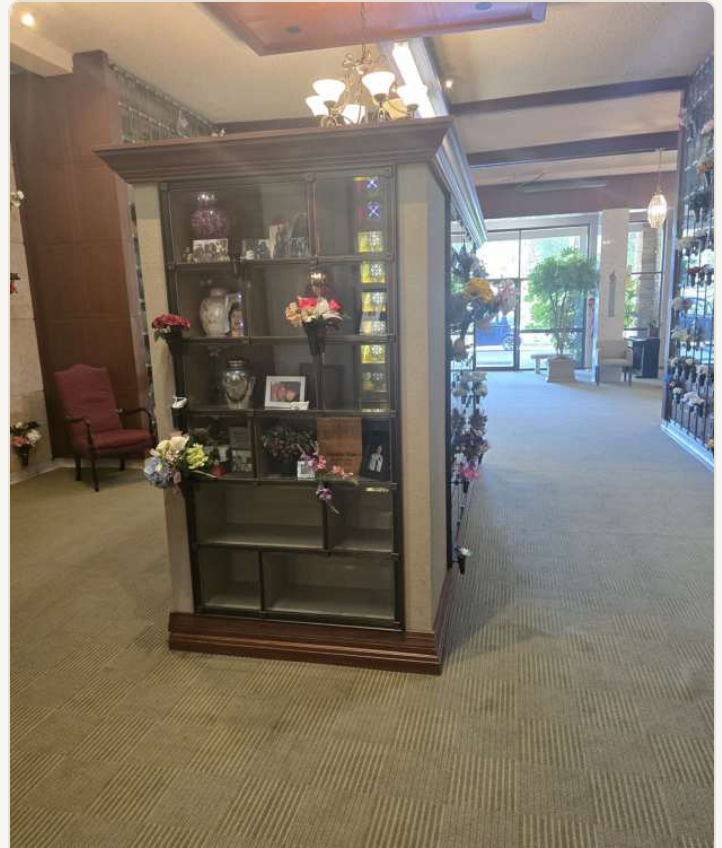

GLASS FRONT • TWO RIGHTS OF INTERMENT

A niche here is closed with glass and lit, so the urn and a photograph or keepsake beside it are part of the memorial. Size and height set the price.

MOST NICHEs HERE

$17,595–$29,695

Full range $10,995–$82,500

The larger units

GLASS FRONT • TWO RIGHTS • MORE ROOM TO ARRANGE

The tall two-row openings give a family a display rather than a shelf. They still carry two rights of interment, like every other niche here.

SECTION 4

What It Costs

The niche, the charges alongside it, and two optional bronzes

ADDITIONAL CHARGES

Opening and closing, recording, endowment care and any inscription are charged in addition to the price of the space. They are straightforward, and they differ by location and by what you choose. Call or email me and I will put the exact figures in writing for you, with no obligation.

WHERE THE TAX APPLIES

The niche itself is not taxed, and neither are the Endowment Care Fund contribution, the opening and closing or the recording fee. The bronze scroll and the vase are merchandise, and those two are taxed at 10.4%. Both are optional.

About these charges. These are Bonney Watson's current charges for Eternal Light. Your family service director will confirm the current charges before quoting.

SECTION 5

What Is Available Now

A small, genuinely limited number

21 of the 85 niches at Eternal Light are for sale today. This is a finished columbarium in an established building rather than a brand-new one, so what is left is what is left. The sizes and heights still on offer are not evenly spread across the four faces. If a particular face or height matters to you, it is worth asking early.

SECTION 6

Coming to See It

What to decide, and what we will confirm for you

- Decide whether the urn should be visible. Everything else about a glass front follows from that one answer.
- Choose the urn with the niche, not after it. In a glass front the urn is the thing people see.
- Decide whether you want one of the two optional bronzes, the scroll or the vase with ring.
- Ask early. There are 21 niches left here, and a specific face or height may not stay available.

Ranges in this guide are computed from the price and availability data behind our live niche maps and are re-checked against them automatically whenever this page changes. They describe what is currently offered for sale, and a range moves as spaces sell. The exact price of a specific niche, and today's availability, are always the ones your family service director confirms for you.
