OVERVIEW

About Flush Granite Markers

A flush marker (also called a flat, flush, or lawn-level marker) rests level with the grass instead of standing upright. It is the most common marker style at Washington Memorial Park.

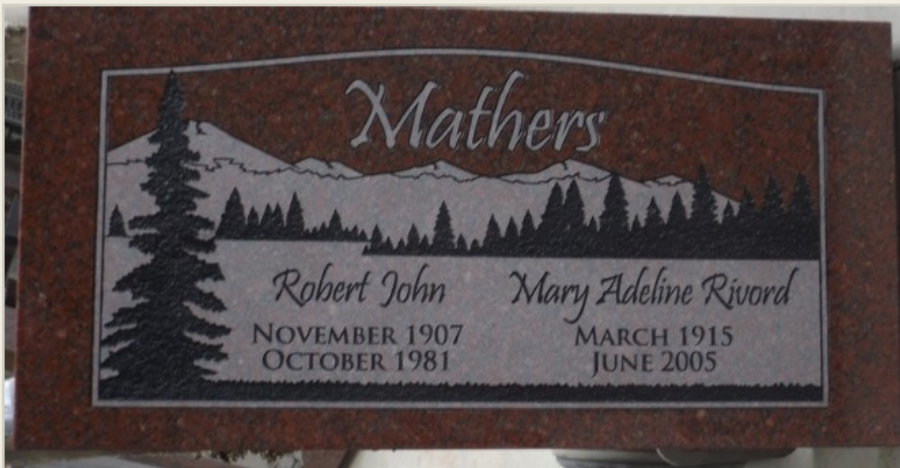

Example flush marker, Absolute Black granite

Why families choose flush markers

- Low profile — the marker sits at ground level, so it blends with the landscape and keeps an unobstructed view of the surrounding grounds.
- Low maintenance — flush against the grass, it's easy for grounds crews to mow around and keep clean, with nothing to trim by hand.
- Durable material — granite is exceptionally resistant to weathering, staining, and fading, so the marker keeps its finish for generations.
- Cost-effective — flush markers are typically more affordable than upright monuments of comparable quality.

Single or Companion

Flush markers can serve a single grave or a companion marker shared by two interment rights. Many of our most popular sizes (see the Size Guide ahead) are available either way.

Example companion marker, hand-carved scene

Every marker in this guide includes the granite, engraving, wording (epitaph), and installation. Photo options (ceramic steel, or hand diamond/laser etched) are covered in the following pages and are the only add-on cost.

SECTION 1

Flush Marker Size Guide

A visual size comparison for our most common flush marker sizes, with total pricing for each stone color group. Every marker includes the granite, engraved design, and wording (epitaph) at no extra cost — the only add-on cost is a memorial photo, if you choose one. Prices shown are the complete total: marker, engraving, installation, and sales tax, all included.

Price key — what G1 NT / G1 T / G2 mean:

Ceramic Steel Portraits

Ceramic steel portraits are kiln-fired porcelain photo plaques recessed into the marker. The image is fused into the porcelain at high temperature, so it will not fade, peel, or discolor outdoors — available in full color, sepia, or black & white.

Example ceramic steel portrait, recessed oval

Lifetime Warranty

Ceramic steel portraits carry a lifetime warranty (does not include removal and install). Recessed mounting is included at time of order.

Diamond & Laser Etched Portraits

Hand diamond etching is a portrait technique where skilled artisans etch a photograph's likeness directly into the granite, one dot at a time, using diamond-plated tools. The result is a deep, permanent impression in the stone — more lifelike and durable than a surface-level laser etch. For best results the portrait area should be at least 6" tall, and a high-quality source photo makes a real difference in the final likeness.

Example hand diamond etched portrait, Absolute Black granite

Absolute Black granite only. Subject to artistic rendering — not an exact photo duplicate.

Over 8" x 10", two people, or a scene	Call for quote

Get an exact quote

Prices above cover the most common cases. Because etched portraits are custom artwork, the best way to get an exact price for more than two people, a full scene, or an unusual size is to request a quote from your counselor.
